iOS 10: How to Delete All Mail

If you have updated to iOS 10 you may have noticed that the Mail app "Trash All" option is missing on the iPhone and iPad. This is unfortunate because the ability to delete all email in iOS is easily one of the more useful features to managing a busy email inbox. The lack of a "Delete All" button in Mail for iOS 10.0, iOS 10.0.1, and iOS 10.0.2 could just be a bug or mishap, but in the meantime if you're looking to regain that trash all functionality we'll show you a workaround that accomplishes a similar "Delete All" mail ability.

By the way, it's not just "Trash All" that is missing in iOS 10 Mail, it's also any ability to bulk select all emails in general. For now the workaround involves a lot of tapping and manually selecting emails and then trashing them, it's a bit cumbersome but it gets the job done on iPhone and iPad.

How to “Delete All” Mail in iOS 10

- _ Open the Mail app in iOS 10
- _ Go to the inbox or mailbox folder you want to delete all emails from
- _ Tap on the “Edit” button in the upper right corner
- _ Now manually tap on every single email you want to delete, as signified by having a blue check mark next to the email message
- _ Now choose “Trash” in the corner
- _ Confirm that you want to delete all selected emails by choosing “Trash Selected Messages”
- _ Repeat with other folders and emails as necessary

Quite a bit more hands on than before, but it works the same.

Losing a feature is rather unusual with an iOS software update, which suggests the removal of Trash All in Mail may be inadvertent. It remains to be seen if future releases of iOS 10.x will regain the ability, but hopefully we’ll regain the same ability to delete all emails on iPhone and iPad that existed in prior iOS software releases before 10.0.

Workaround to Delete ALL eMail in iOS 10

Another workaround allows deleting all emails in iOS 10 as well, but it should be stressed this is indeed a workaround and it is nonspecific in that literally every single email will be deleted from the iPhone or iPad in the process.

Do not attempt this without a backup or unless you are absolutely certain you never want those emails again, every single email will be deleted from the device whether it is read or unread:

- _ Open the inbox and then tap on “Edit”
- _ Tap on any message on screen so the checkbox appears next to it
- _ Now press and hold the “Move” button with one finger, and while holding the “Move” button, uncheck the message you previously checked
- _ Now release the “Move” button
- _ You’ll now be at the Inbox selection screen, at the top of the screen will show how many emails are selected, choose the “Trash” icon to move them all to trash and permanently delete them

This is an old workaround to delete every single email from Mail from long ago that continues to work with iOS 10 on iPhone and iPad. It is unforgiving and literally deletes every email from every account on the iPhone so be certain you wish to do that.

Famous People from American History

P.T. Barnum

Entrepreneur / Showman

Born: 5 July 1810

Died: 7 April 1891

Birthplace: Bethel, Connecticut

Best known as: 19th century American huckster

Name at birth: Phineas Taylor Barnum

P.T. Barnum bought the American Museum in New York City in 1841 and turned it into an exhibition hall for the presentation of "freaks" such as "The Feejee Mermaid" and the ultra-diminutive General Tom Thumb (real name: Charles Stratton). A brilliant and shameless promoter, Barnum weathered accusations of fraud with the attitude that there was no such thing as bad press, and he became one of the richest men in America. His string of successful acts included European opera singer Jenny Lind, Jumbo the elephant and conjoined twins Chang and Eng Bunker. In 1871 Barnum opened a circus, billed as "The Greatest Show On Earth." In 1881 he merged with competitor James Bailey, forming Barnum & Bailey's Circus (eventually it became today's Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus).

Although it's unclear if he ever said it, Barnum is frequently cited as the source of the quote: "There's a sucker born every minute."
